he was handed a baton that says, “Better Half”. The Kate of Honor has been called the bride’s better half for her entire life… until now, that is! Now the groom takes that role and the baton is passed (literally and figuratively) to him.

So They’re Married! Yay! Now What Do We Do?
Eat. Drink. Play board games. Dance. Have fun! Finger foods will be provided. Drinks are at the corner bar in the back of the theater. Board games are set up in the theater too because the bride and groom love to play board games and thought you might enjoy it too. Grab a few friends and try a new game!

Can I Eat What’s On the Middle of the Table?
If you’re talking about the candy, yes! If you’re talking about decorations or table linens, no!

Am I Going to Have To Try and Catch That Bouquet Later? It Looks Dangerous…
That bouquet only looks dangerous—the lightsaber hilt isn’t real! The bride made that bouquet herself and won’t be tossing it (or knocking anyone out with it) today.

Does This Wedding Have a Hashtag?
For those of you posting on social media, the bride and groom would love if you could use #TeamTorbeck in your posts so they can go back and see what you shared! However, feel free to go phone-free and be totally present with us today instead! :)

Hey, Where’s the Guestbook?
There isn’t a guestbook. But there IS a guest BOARD! It’s in the lobby where you came in. If you passed it by, don’t worry! Just turn around and go back out. No, not out of the theater—just out into the lobby. You’ll find a Ticket to Ride board there to sign!

Can I Hang Out With the Happy Couple?
Sure! During the reception, the bride and groom will be borrowing guests to take pictures with them in the lobby and chat for a bit. They’d sure love to catch you before you go for the night!

Whoo! That was fun!
Time to Call it a Night!
Yeah, it sure was! The bride and groom thank you for coming and celebrating this exciting day with them! Drive safely and goodnight!
Where Am I?

Well, for starters, you're at a wedding. That wedding happens to be in the Castle Theatre. You may be wondering why the bride and groom picked a theater. They liked the uniqueness and the drama (good drama!) and how it reminded them of their relationship (good drama!). What follows is a quick reference for navigating said wedding.

Where Will I Sit?

You are welcome to sit wherever you want (except the west wing; it's forbidden!). Actually, the seats closest to the stage will be reserved for the immediate family of the bride and groom. You may also notice that this is a small theater; you may want to make some new friends and sit near the people around you! This will leave room for families to stick together and you'll get new friends! Win-win!

Who's That Guy Talking On the Stage?

That’s the bride’s uncle, J.D. Norcross. He’s a really cool guy! You should probably say hi to him if you get the chance.

Who's That Girl Talking On the Stage?

That's the bride’s twin sister, Kate Norcross. She’s adorable. The Best Man, Matt Komorowski (groom’s brother/cousin), is her twin brother.

Wait: What’s That Shiny Thing the Groom Was Handed?

You probably couldn’t read it from where you’re sitting, but (cont’d) you should probably say hi to him if you get the chance.

Who Are Those Other People On the Stage?

They’re the Kate of Honor, Kate Norcross (bride’s twin sister) and her twin brother, the Best Man, Matt Komorowski (groom’s brother/cousin). They’re both really cool guys! You should probably say hi to them if you get the chance.

Wait, Are Those Cameras? I Need to Talk to My Agent About This!

Before you get too worried—yes, you’re being filmed. Or more accurately, the wedding is being filmed, and since you’re here, you may be too. The wedding is being streamed on the internet so that more friends can attend. Please be careful around the filming equipment and do not touch it. Please don’t feed the cameras! Maybe feed the cameraman instead!

Wait, Where Are Those Small Lightsabers?

No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed the bride and groom their small lightsabers. No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed them to the bride and groom.

Wait, Star Wars? Will There Be LIGHTSABERS Here?!

Maybe. You’ll have to stay awake long enough to see if they appear in the ceremony. Yeah, it’s a space star—it’s a Star Wars wedding!

Wait, Who Are Those Jedi Robes the Groom is Wearing?

Those are actually Jedi Robes, made by the amazing Renee Collins. Jedi are defenders of peace and justice (kind of like the groom), and the Star Wars universe (and the bride and groom, really like Star Wars). The groom also wanted to be as excited about his outfit as the bride is about hers—and he is! REALLY excited! Maybe feed the bride and groom their Jedi Robes. No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed them to the bride and groom.

Wait, What’s That Funny-Looking Tux the Groom is Wearing?

Uh… That’s a space star—it’s a space tuxedo—it’s a space star—it’s a space tuxedo—it’s a space star—it’s a space tuxedo—it’s a space star—it’s a space star—it’s a space…

Tux the Groom is Wearing… It’s a space star—it’s a space…

Uh… I Have to Use the Little Bathroom Here…

The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d).

Who Else is There?

Who’re those other people? They’re probably other wedding guests. They’re probably other wedding guests. They’re probably other wedding guests.

Uhm… I Have to Use the Little Bathroom Here…

The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d).

Well, for starters, you’re at a wedding. That wedding happens to be in the Castle Theatre. You may be wondering why the bride and groom picked a theater. They liked the uniqueness and the drama (good drama!) and how it reminded them of their relationship (good drama!). What follows is a quick reference for navigating said wedding.

Where Will I Sit?

You are welcome to sit wherever you want (except the west wing; it’s forbidden!). Actually, the seats closest to the stage will be reserved for the immediate family of the bride and groom. You may also notice that this is a small theater; you may want to make some new friends and sit near the people around you! This will leave room for families to stick together and you’ll get new friends! Win-win!

Who’s That Guy Talking On the Stage?

That’s the bride’s uncle, J.D. Norcross. He’s a really cool guy! You should probably say hi to him if you get the chance.

Who’s That Girl Talking On the Stage?

That’s the bride’s twin sister, Kate Norcross. She’s adorable. The Best Man, Matt Komorowski (groom’s brother/cousin), is her twin brother.

Wait: What’s That Shiny Thing the Groom Was Handed?

You probably couldn’t read it from where you’re sitting, but (cont’d) you should probably say hi to him if you get the chance.

Who Are Those Other People On the Stage?

They’re the Kate of Honor, Kate Norcross (bride’s twin sister) and her twin brother, the Best Man, Matt Komorowski (groom’s brother/cousin). They’re both really cool guys! You should probably say hi to them if you get the chance.

Wait, Are Those Cameras? I Need to Talk to My Agent About This!

Before you get too worried—yes, you’re being filmed. Or more accurately, the wedding is being filmed, and since you’re here, you may be too. The wedding is being streamed on the internet so that more friends can attend. Please be careful around the filming equipment and do not touch it. Please don’t feed the cameras! Maybe feed the cameraman instead!

Wait, Where Are Those Small Lightsabers?

No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed the bride and groom their small lightsabers. No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed them to the bride and groom.

Wait, Star Wars? Will There Be LIGHTSABERS Here?!

Maybe. You’ll have to stay awake long enough to see if they appear in the ceremony. Yeah, it’s a space star—it’s a Star Wars wedding!

Wait, Who Are Those Jedi Robes the Groom is Wearing?

Those are actually Jedi Robes, made by the amazing Renee Collins. Jedi are defenders of peace and justice (kind of like the groom), and the Star Wars universe (and the bride and groom, really like Star Wars). The groom also wanted to be as excited about his outfit as the bride is about hers—and he is! REALLY excited! Maybe feed the bride and groom their Jedi Robes. No, they’re not useful for cutting your food. They’re decorations. Maybe feed them to the bride and groom.

Wait, What’s That Funny-Looking Tux the Groom is Wearing?

Uh… That’s a space star—it’s a space tuxedo—it’s a space star—it’s a space tuxedo—it’s a space star—it’s a space star—it’s a space…

Tux the Groom is Wearing… It’s a space star—it’s a space…

Uh… I Have to Use the Little Bathroom Here…

The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d). The bathrooms are located in the corner of the lobby where you entered (cont’d).